

English Date _____

Kunrada Chiranorawanit 2022

Name _____

M. _____ No. _____

- Instructions: 1. Let the first sentence be the one with the main verb.
2. Mark the relevant noun and pronoun before you combine the sentences.

A. Combine the two sentences into one. Use the relative pronoun "who".

Ex.1 My brother lives near the sea. He loves fresh air.
My brother who loves fresh air lives near the sea.

1. Jack is a friend of mine. He spends his holidays at a temple.

2. Susie speaks three languages. She wants to work at an international company.

3. Those teenagers never go out. They watch Netflix all day.

Ex.2 Our new tennis coach is very nice. I admire her.
Our new tennis coach who I admire is very nice.

4. The person drove me to school. You saw her.

5. Jimmie is an actor. I know him as a neighbor.

6. The doctor specializes in orthopedics. We often visit him.

B. Combine the two sentences into one. Use the relative pronoun "which".

Ex.3 The camera helps us see his face clearly. It is attached to the ceiling.
The camera which is attached to the ceiling helps us see his face clearly.

1. Oranges should be part of your diet. They have a lot of health benefits.

2. The ring belongs to my family. It never gets rusted.

3. The iPhone became popular globally. Steve Jobs invented it.

C. Combine the two sentences into one. Use the relative pronoun "who" or "which".

1. I love my family. They never betray me.

2. There is now a GPS app. It helps you find treasure.

D. Combine the two sentences into one. Use the relative pronoun "whose".

Ex.3 The students are playing with their phones. Their teacher is lecturing.
The students whose teacher is lecturing are playing with their phones.

1. The man can play the guitar. His brother sings beautifully.

2. The nice kid helped the old lady. Her books fell on the floor.

3. The Smith family lives in Canada. Their son moved to England.

4. The woman lives across the street. Her dog is barking.

5. The man is in a hospital. His car crashed.

6. These are poor children. Their breakfast is low in protein.

7. I know the baker. I love his apple pie.

8. That is my colleague. I bought his car.
